

June 1-3, 2021

EDUCATION AS A PROTECTIVE INFLUENCE FOR VULNERABLE YOUTH POPULATIONS PANELIST

Beyond 2020: the next normal

COVID-19 + YOUTH

RESEARCH. POLICY. PRACTICE. ADVOCACY.

Tracy Lachica Buenavista, Ph.D.

Asian American Studies and Educational Leadership
California State University Northridge (CSUN)

Tracy Lachica Buenavista is Professor of Asian American Studies and a core faculty member in the Doctoral Program in Educational Leadership. She also serves as the co-principal investigator for the CSUN DREAM Center, Asian American Studies Pathways Project, and Ethnic Studies Education Pathways Project; and is a member of the Project Rebound Community Advisory Committee. Professor Buenavista teaches courses on race and racism, immigration, and research methods, and in her research uses critical race theory to examine how education, immigration, and carcerality shape the contemporary experiences of Filipino/a/x and other People of Color in the U.S. She is originally from the Bay Area, and loves to read, run, and jump rope.

A virtual forum hosted by the New York State Youth Justice Institute